

PROPHECY
BITES

The Train Ride

(Jesus speaking:)

Hi, by the way. Great to see you here on the threshold of the new hereafter. Buckle up your belt and get ready. I look in My rear view mirror from the driver's seat. I smile. I'm glad to have you on board. The ride is starting up and new horizons is where we are going.

I reach My hand back and give yours a squeeze. I wink and release the throttle. The break is released, and we begin to move. Now is the time for tanking up. I love each of My brides and will give them what they need for the days and years to come.

Be wise and use your energies in full-throttle work for Me. When Word is your work, and vice-a-versa, it's easy then to "fit Me into your schedule."

I look into the mirror to see your eyes as the vehicle begins to move. I catch a slight apprehension, but the look in My eyes passes on the excitement and thrill of the adventure and at the same time reassures you. That is what helps you through the initial moves. You know the train is in motion and it's not going to stop until destination.

Maybe during some of the lulls that I allow along the way, I can put it (the train) in gear and come and snuggle in the back seat with you.

Here we go!

Angel At Your Service

(Arcothon speaking)

My dear little student, God won't upbraid you for not being good at something when you are coming to Him asking for help to improve. Indeed there is always lots more you can learn.

You think that your feelings or lack of them will affect your prayers or get you off the rail altogether, and that's why you wish for the Holy Spirit to pray through you.

There's nothing wrong with feeling utterly weak, entirely unable to do a task your Lord and commander has asked of you. Because we can do nothing of ourselves, if we were given tasks truly equal to our powers, it would be downright insulting, they would be so puny. No, we are given the tasks, rather, that need to be done, and then as we yield to His supreme power, He grants our wish to have the anointing needed to do what needs to be done.

A Lesson On Prayer

Okay darling, first lesson, there can be no private agendas. If you are praying because you want your will to be done on earth, then you've flunked the prayer session before it even started. So knowing Your Master's will before prayer is the best way to go.

So, now with a pile of broken dreams and a heart in pieces all heaped together, it's time to pull out the magic wand of intercessory prayer, and ask for God's will to be done. No use trying to make your will be done, that's done and over with. Now's the time to pray for His will and not care what happens to you in the mix.

Sometimes being a conduit is fun, like when you receive an important message or you get some neat and inspiring insight. Other times, like in the prayer department, you get nothing back or have nothing to show -that you can see. You are simply relaying words to the throne of God of things that are needed.

