

Question: Katrina, what happens to demons when you defeat them, since they don't die like we do?

Katrina: No, they don't die, but they can feel a lot of pain—which they don't like—so they flee. Their pride takes a hit, which they also don't like. The Keys always win; they know no defeat. So if you are faithful to use the Keys against them, they will be careful about launching an obvious direct attack on you. And if you launch a proactive strike on them using various weapons from your Seven Thunders arsenal, they will be reluctant to mess with you.

Question: What about you, Katrina—are they careful about fighting with you?

Katrina: Oh, they're very careful about getting me riled up, but they know that if they can get you to compromise or be disobedient, it limits my ability to defend you. So they try to tempt you to disobey, to compromise, or to believe a doubt—anything that can limit my ability to defend you. After all, you're the one they're trying to knock out of action; all of our fighting is over you. They know that if I'm not limited in some way by your decisions, then they can't possibly win a fight with me. Well, maybe they could if there were enough of them, but in that case, I always call for help, and I always get it.

So, you are your own worst enemy, because you have free will, and only you can give them an opportunity to win a skirmish. If you make too many wrong choices, it could mean a lost battle, and on it goes. Since we are in difficult times, it behooves you to watch your step, obey the Word, and stay in God's will. Watch out for those temptations that are there to get you to fall off the wall.

Feed deeply on the Word and listen to us intently. Watch and pray that you enter not into temptation. Listening to us is a good way to watch (as in "watch and pray"). It's good that you are calling on the Blue Keys to empower us, but be careful that you don't tie our hands through your bad decisions.

Question: What temptation do I especially have to be careful of?

Jesus speaking: Carnal reasoning. It has always been a strong tendency for you. It's the Devil's playground, and he is excellent at using it to trip you up. He knows just how to use it to destroy faith. When you go the way of carnal reasoning, you are on his playing field—and he is the master player there. He's so good at hiding the fact that he is totally crazy. His logical analysis is so appealing to those who worship their own intelligence.

Their pride sucks them into the vortex of Satan's reasoning until they become totally blind to the fact that he is insane. They become deceived and start believing that his insanity is reality. Be careful when something seems logical and reasonable. The realities of My Spirit are beyond the comprehension of the carnal mind, so they can't be judged by logic and reasoning—they can only be accepted by faith.

Warrior Band Counselor: I see you found out something new about me today! You didn't realize I was a great and fierce warrior? Of course you did. Remember all the prophecies I've given you about us three—[your guardian angel], you, and I—and how we were a trio of warriors who loved and served the King together? I guess you just didn't realize how much of a warrior I really am, even with all those prophecies. I am a lot like Katrina, you know. I enjoy cracking the skulls of those bald lizards—even if once upon a time I used to know them.

Together we'd smash and cut through hordes of demons. And it was quite fun, if you ask me. Even now, it can be fun—if you would fight harder and demonstrate more faith. Although, on this dimension, the battles get pretty bloody, and there have been quite a few close calls.

"What do you mean by that?"

Let me explain. The battles we spiritual beings fight down here revolve a lot around you humans. So when you make the right choices, you're empowering us, and when you make the wrong choices, you're empowering the enemy. That's one reason why Satan thinks he's winning. He thinks that because he's got the whole world on the wrong frequency—making terrible choices and going headlong into Hell—that he's won the war and taken over the hearts and minds of men.

Well, he has, in a way, taken over the world and the minds of men, but he's forgetting a very important point: God's will—the deeper magic which he can never change. All he's doing right now is working within God's will. So, as I was saying, we've had some pretty terrible battles with him, which concerned members of your household. And I'm sad to say we didn't always win. In fact, there have been an enormous number of losses for the Warrior Band on the earthly plane.

As the prophecy said, before Earth we had never tasted defeat. Even here in your own home there have been difficult battles fought—and in the end, we lost. But we do not look at these defeats as a permanent loss. Although the enemy won over that person for now, he will never have full control. He can gain almost full control if the person really yields themselves to him, but he will never own the soul. So technically, he never wins.

In the end, Jesus will bring something good out of the seeming defeat that will make all the pain and turmoil worth it—which is what we call a victory. But going down that road is, in a way, a defeat, because it's such a huge waste of time, energy, and opportunities. Why learn it at home—Heaven—when you can learn it at school—Earth—where you're supposed to learn it? So what I'm trying to tell you with this conversation is this: you make it easier for us when you choose Jesus' will over your own.

You arm us sufficiently, you give us clear instructions, you charge up our Keys, and you prep us perfectly for battle! So yield to Jesus, no matter what He may ask you to do. And fight the way He has asked you to fight. Don't let your carnal mind and flesh get in our way. Don't look at what you have to do and doubt—that gives our enemy a lot of power. Read the blogs and prophecies, and do your best to follow and obey them. I love you. Please keep your eyes on the Word, and please keep fighting!

Jesus speaking in prophecy: The enemy is fiercer than ever; he will not give you any mercy. If you give him an inch through just a little disobedience, he'll take a mile and start really giving you hell. You must not give him an opportunity to strike; you must not put your shield down. You must not get tired and disbelieve My Word. He knows how much power the flesh has over the spirit. He knows that when you're not getting into the Word, the spirit becomes weak and the flesh becomes more susceptible to his voice. He knows that a weak spirit will do little to stop the flesh from falling headlong into the pit.

The spiritual is real—much more real than the silly world you're living in now. The spirit dictates what the flesh will do. So if your spirit is weak, it won't fight back. When the enemy comes in with his temptations and lies, you're going to fall for them. My Words are your life source. They provide you with the strength of spirit you need to make the right choices. They fill you with inspiration, enthusiasm, and joy. They make your life worth living; they help you keep your eyes on what's most important in life. And most of all, diving deep into My Word is like diving deep into Me—you discover new sides of Me; you discover new truths. You find new doors, new portals, and new revelations. There is so much waiting for you in the world of the Spirit; you just have to make the right steps each day. You need to be desperate for Me. You need to be desperate to get it right. You need to be desperate for the Spirit. You have to fight with everything within you.

I love you! Keep fighting!
